TOKYO BAR CLARIFICATION

In the short time since Dallas Kosher shared the news that Tokyo Bar is no longer under DK certification, it has become apparent that additional information may be valuable.

1. In early July, Dallas Kosher was notified by the owners that the business has been sold effective August 1, and that the new owners plan to rebrand and offer a non-Kosher menu.
2. Dallas Kosher has respected the owner's request that DK not publicize this in any way.
3. Since this news was shared with Dallas Kosher, supervision and certification continued with no change and was scheduled to be in place through today, July 31.
4. On Thursday afternoon, July 30, DK was informed that Tokyo Bar would be open on Friday, July 31, with no supervision as the owners chose to decline supervision for this final day. This left Dallas Kosher with no choice but to share the brief announcement that you may have seen yesterday.

As the Executive Director and Kashrus Administrator of Dallas Kosher, I am responsible - in collaboration with the Board of Directors and the Rabbonim of the Standards Advisory Committee - for the organization's policies and decisions. This is a tremendous privilege, but also a very serious responsibility. We recognize the loss of a popular kosher eatery in our community is painful. DK remains committed to supporting the development of opportunities for the community.

While some of you may know me better than others, I sincerely invite each of you to reach out to me directly to share your concerns, questions or suggestions. I'd be very glad to share with you what we do, how we do it, and the opportunities and challenges facing DK as we grow.

I look forward to hearing from you. My email is matrotter@dallaskosher.org

Best wishes for a wonderful Shabbos,

Rabbi Moshe Aryeh Tropper
