Purchasing Chametz After Pesach

In addition to the prohibitions of eating and owning chametz during Pesach, there is an additional prohibition of benefitting from chametz that was owned by a Jew during Pesach. This is known as chametz she'avar alav haPesach. A more thorough discussion of some of the issues can be found here.

This prohibition does not apply to all products prohibited on Pesach. For a detailed list of what products this prohibition applies to see here.

Quick turnover items, such as bread and cake, may be purchased at any major store two weeks after Pesach (Thursday, April 23). Slower turnover items, such as hard pretzels and pasta, may be purchased four weeks after Pesach (Thursday, May 7).

Food items that only contain kitniyos (“legumes”) may be purchased at any store immediately after Pesach.

The following supermarkets have been approved for purchasing chametz immediately following Pesach. This list is for stores in the Greater Philadelphia area, and it is possible that more stores will be added.

All Keystone-K certified Establishments.

This includes the entire supermarket that contains Keystone-K kosher sections (Giant - Wynnwood, Giant - Huntington Pike, House of Kosher, and ShopRite on the Boulevard).

Acme	Gopuff.com	Starbucks
Aldi	Krispy Kreme	Target (Wynnwood & City Ave.)
BJ's	Petco	Total Wine
Costco	Petsmart	Trader Joe's
CVS	Restaurant Depot	Walgreens
Dollar General	Rita's (City Ave., Elkins Park & Grant Ave*)	Walmart
Dollar Tree	Sam's Club	Wawa
Five Below	Save a Lot	Wegman's
Giant		Whole Foods

7-Eleven & Starbucks Kiosks – They are individually owned and can be assumed to be permitted unless otherwise known. The 7-Eleven Stores on City Ave. are permitted.

Amazon, Target.com, Walmart.com, etc. – are not Jewish owned and do not use a Jewish supplier. However, they also serve as distributor for many Jewish-owned companies. If the product says, “ships from and sold by Amazon, Walmart, ...” (usually under the ‘buy now’ button), it is fine. If it is sold by a third party, as many Chometz items are, we cannot verify its status.
